What should I expect?

Rather than weeks of time-consuming meetings, this one day worksession captures your expectations for the project. You receive real-time feedback in an “open-book” format on critical elements of various options.

Expect quite a few people. Movement. Active participation on your part. Dynamic environment. Conversation. Food will be provided.

There will be three architectural designers preset throughout the day, each creating a facility improvement option for the school board to consider. Each option will address issues discovered in the facility assessments conducted by the State of Colorado and verified by our master planning team.

What is a Worksession?

During a worksession, attendees can be an “architect for the day” and work with the team to explore facility improvement options.

What is a Check-in?

At check-ins, each designer will present their options to all attendees so they are aware of what other groups are brainstorming and check-in on progress being made.

At the final check-in, all options developed during the day will be reviewed one last time for the benefit of the staff and community to comment and share ideas.
